Earn your degree at night Informational meeting Nov. 13

Grand Junction – Going to college can open up a new world of possibilities. But for many, going to college is easier said than done. That’s why Mesa State College continues to have one of the lowest tuition and fees of any college in the state. It’s why Mesa State offers a wide variety of financial aid packages. And that is why the college is creating more online and night classes.

Taking classes at night can be a great way to get it started. Because each individual is different and brings different experiences and goals with them, we like to work with you individually to select courses and plan a schedule.

Mesa State will host special information and advising sessions about Mesa@Night the second Thursday of each month from 5:30 to 6:30 PM in the Mesa State College Admission Office (12th Street and Texas Avenue). This is a new location for the Admission Office; come by and see the renovation. The next information meeting will be Thursday, November 13, at 5:30 PM. Free parking is available in front of the office or across Texas Avenue.

Come by and talk with an admission counselor or academic advisor to learn more about your options and begin mapping a path toward an Associate’s or Bachelor’s degree. Financial aid is available for those who qualify to help you reach your college degree goals.

To find out more contact the Admission Office/Transfer Center at 248.1232.
